Once again thank you for that very short powerful message. I will continue to hold on to the word of God in Habakkuk 3:17 "though the tree may not flourish...yet I will rejoice, I will joy in the God of my salvation. He has made my feet like the hind's feet. God indeed is not a man or the son of man to repent of His words. I will continue to wait till all His words and promises are accomplished in my life.

Maranatha!

This is a good one. Do you address officiating ministers who have a business to offer hope to their congregation? I think not, though they can learn to be more diplomatic to deliver the message which they have been sent Christ died for the ungodly that we may be reconciled to God. It is a hard job, to avoid kicking a person who is already down.

I think yours is rather a call for us to shine in God's glory in our living, lest in our death, the self-consolation by our loved ones' ring hollow before God, and sometimes before man. You know in bereavement, we all seek the comfort that is reserved for Christians, and why not – when the label Christian is not a clear distinguishing factor in today's world. Anyway, who can tell what the label glory means? May the Lord help us.

Second Man: Have you not heard? I said that I am very rich. I pay $10,000 every week as tithe. My pastor will look for me.”

First Man: What can your wealth do for you now that you are lost in the woods. The animals will eat you up

Second Man: Someone will look for me because I am very rich.

First Man: I know that no search party will be sent out to look for us because nobody knows we are lost.

Second Man: I am very sure someone will look for me.

First Man: There is no way we can get back home since we did not inform anyone before we came out here

“Two friends went out to the woods for an adventure. After awhile they got lost. Fear started to mount because they did not know how to get back home. One of them is a Christian so he was certain that God would send someone to look for him.

Here is a story for you: Our pastor sometimes gives a story before he delivers the sermon for the day. Here is one of them, though paraphrased.

Thank you for your inspirational mail, straight from the heart. Amazing isn't it? It is another matter when these issues are the case with His own children.

Just to share a thought from fellowship today--I am still thinking of it. It is the fact that the children of Israel went into the Red Sea under pressure (the army of Pharaoh was right behind them), but they entered the Jordan by their own free will. His calls for us nowadays bear the marks of a willing death, but that is the only way to our spiritual, (and many times, physical) inheritance!!

Somehow, I've been reaching out to people with your messages, and I guess the creativity aspect help to drive the message home. The stories are too brief or too direct now, making them to look dry and strictly religion materials. You must find time for this very calling!

I don't seem to understand some games going on around me, especially when it appears certain persons very close to me are involved. Their interest, it seems, is not to assist me. That sort of using one as a ladder thing. This just like you wrote in one of the Son shine write-ups. When those one trusted turns out to be dudes. I have also discovered that maybe for lack of time, the Son Shine messages these days lack the in-depth touch of creativity. For instance the type we have in the guy who walked into an office wacking his mouth with a tooth pick.

This question is always on my mind; psychologists say at best man uses only 10% of his potential. How can he use 100% or at least 99% without having brain fag or going crazy?

How can he be the very best God created him to be?

Is it thought? prayer? study? meditation? Or, the leading of the spirit?

If it is through thinking? Thinking about what?

Or like different kinds of food, is it different kinds of activities?

Fresh goals? Higher degrees? More money? prayer and fasting?

“Life situations are so different in some aspects, but problems in life are everywhere.

I still can't really understand, how people can live nearly "in paradise" and be so sad that it is not possible for them to keep alive. Depression, loneliness and fears are a big problem in our society - maybe, because people have everything they need and don't know for what their life is useful. She was not alone but I think she felt very lonesome because she chose to live on her own and did not tell us how bad she felt. How can one work with all this and make other people believe the strategies work if one fails in one's own private life with the dearest people? So we have a lot to think about at the moment. Money, safety, comfort, all this is not what makes people feel happy. Everything in Life makes sense, even if we don't see it, because we have a short time to live and a limited understanding of the whole.”
